- I know that the course is meant to serve as a history elective, but the title of the course makes me think it's more about the interconnections of music, power, and politics. I felt like the course was structured more like a history course rather than a political one. Using HS classes as an example, I was expecting a government class, but instead it was just another global/us history. I would suggest either changing the title to fit the material in the course or taking a different approach. I think the biggest pitfall was the amount of lecturing. I would suggest less lecturing and more group discussion, opportunities for debate, or some sort of activity/experience.
- I really enjoyed taking this course this summer!
- I like how the content isn't focused on classical music, but all genres. The Open the doors were cool, and a nice relaxing way to end the week. I'm not the biggest fan of the deeper dive in terms of recording a 10 min audio note, but it is much better than giving a presentation or writing a paper. I just second guess myself and make 10+ takes LOL.
- I wish I had more grades throughout the course. Wonderful content and amazing class!
- I loved this course, and I am not usually one to love a history course but I felt like the topics we discussed were so useful and pertinent to our lives as music teachers. I loved the open the doors as it was a great way to learn more about things you want, but also to see where everyone else's passions lie.

18 - THE INSTRUCTOR: Please comment on the strengths and weaknesses of Erin Brooks. Would you take another course from this instructor? -

- I would absolutely take another course with you!
- Dr. Brooks is an amazing professor! She is very passionate and knowledgeable about Music History and Music Culture.
- The best!
- Love this professor would take a million courses if I could
- I loved Dr. Brooks, she is a very animated speaker, is clearly well educated on her topics. However, I do wish we got some grades back throughout the semester, if only to see how I was doing and to adjust for future assignments. Especially on the open the door assignments, going into the third or fourth, we still got no feedback on our first ones.
